BONNIE & CLYDE

Bonnie and Clyde were just babies — about five months old — in February 2016, when they were rescued from an auction on their way to a kill pen. These babies were very thin and cold, and were completely covered in burrs that were tangled and matted in their winter coats. They were very frightened and, not surprisingly, clung to each other for comfort. These two have grown up together just like brother and sister. Deeply bonded, they are never more than a few feet from each other. It took some time, but Bonnie and Clyde learned to trust people, and now they absolutely love attention. They are favorites of the many visitors who meet them.
